

Bernadette's Body after 122 years

The thing to remember is that the poor sisters of those days were buried in a pine box and in no way embalmed like today. This is one of the 200+ miracle facts of incorruptible bodies that can only be traced to most of the declared saints of the Roman Catholic Church. These are the pictures of Saint Bernadette who died 122 years ago in Lourdes, France, and was buried; her body was only discovered 30 years ago. After church officials decided to examine it, they discovered her body is still fresh until today and if you ever go to Lourdes, France, you can see her in the church in Lourdes. Her body isn't decomposing. During her lifetime, the Mother of Jesus would appear to her and give messages and advice to mankind on the right way to live on this earth. Many miracles have taken place in this place, Lourdes, and still do until today.

These pictures show her body after 122 years.

Scientists have wondered about this because it defies the laws of nature, and instead of expecting a foul smell of a dead body, a fragrance of flowers can be experienced when the glass of the coffin is opened. Some say they experience the fragrance by just going near the coffin. You can visit the Church of Lourdes, France, to verify for yourself the authenticity of this truly wonderful experience and see for yourself a living miracle of our times.
